PREVENTION AND WAYS OF PREVENTION OF VIOLENCE IN FAMILIES

One of the reasons for the aggravation of the problem of domestic violence against children is the social and economic instability in the society. According to statistics, there are about 2 million incomplete and problematic families in Ukraine, where there is only one parent or parents are in constant search of work.

To prevent such problems now, it is necessary to open special “schools for young parents”, the activities of which should be aimed at encouraging the parents to show care for their children, promoting peace and humanity towards their children. “The approximate program of such schools” should include the following:

- Teaching parents to recognize the child's right to privacy
- Trust children
- Respect feelings of other parent
- Provide emotional comfort
- Speak and act in a way that makes children feel safe and comfortable
- Tell the child about their own attitude concerning life values
- Take care of oneself: have free time, take care of own health, communicate with your friends, accept love and positivity
- Encourage children to do what they are interested in, show and express love for the child.

In addition to all the above, it is necessary to reform the educational system in the field of law, so that children know their rights and obligations to their parents as well as future parents.

However, we must not forget that the Family Code stipulates that parents have the right to raise their children using methods that they consider appropriate.

So, during the research, it was found that the problem of domestic violence still exists and, unfortunately, is becoming more and more widespread. Thus, if everyone supports these activities, if the legislation becomes more clear and concise in its interpretation, this problem will be eliminated for good in time.
