Foreign Anti-Corruption Experience

The analysis of international fight experience against a corruption testifies that present corruption features are those factors that create the real threat to the national safety and democratic development in the most countries all over the world and influence negatively on all spheres of public life.

The analysis of foreign countries legislation testifies that constitutions of many democratically developed countries lay on the law enforcement authorities certain part of work in the sphere of anti-corruption measures enforcement.

In Israel an anticorruption actions are carried out by the system of "certain duplication of monitoring" after possible corruption actions. It is provided by government agencies and special subdivisions of police as well as by the department of the State management that owns independence from ministries and state departments and public organizations such as "Department for the cleanness of government".

In Great Britain high standards of civil behavior are the results of political and legislative measures, moral changes and more effective social control after civil servants. This country has the oldest traditions of fight against a corruption. The system of anticorruption mechanisms is well-regulated at the legislative level.

At the bottom of anticorruption fight in Germany laid down the task of material and financial sources abolishment of criminal groupments. It is achieved in two ways: by appropriation (appropriation of property) and by creation of the proper legal base for making the "money laundering" impossible.

The conducted analysis of foreign experience for crime prevention initiatives in Israel, Great Britain, Germany and other countries allows us to form an idea of national anticorruption strategy development that is very important for the present-day Ukraine.
